Orchid Resorts & Escapes Welcomes Glenmere Mansion

Luxury specialty travel group introduces a new partner into its one-of-a-kind collection

New York, NY – May 2, 2013 – Orchid Resorts & Escapes, a leading sales, marketing and partnership agency specializing in luxury travel and high-end leisure announced the addition of Glenmere Mansion to its worldwide portfolio this week. Located just 50 miles west of New York City, the stunning Relais & Châteaux property, originally a Gilded Age retreat of the Goelet family, has been reborn as a premier luxury hotel and spa with acclaimed bath house/hammam.

Commissioned by real estate tycoon, Robert Goulet in 1911, Glenmere Mansion was designed by famed architects Carrère and Hastings who are perhaps most well-known for designing the Frick and the New York Public Library. Almost a century later in 2007, the mansion was bought by its current owners who envisioned a wonderful country retreat. With a determination to bring Glenmere back to its former magnificence the owners put a team in place and went to work painstakingly restoring the property. Original architectural details have been preserved throughout, and the landscape once more offers panoramic views of the surrounding hills and tranquil Glenmere Lake. Today, Glenmere is a luxury escape with eighteen stylish guest accommodations, two superb restaurants, acclaimed spa and exceptional recreational facilities.

Stacy Dreyfus, Founder of Orchid Resorts & Escapes, instantly fell in love with Glenmere when she was invited for a house tour earlier this year. “The serene landscape, stylish design, upscale service, exquisite dining and gorgeous spa had me at hello... We’re always looking for something superb and one-of-a-kind to 'wow' our clients and Glenmere does not disappoint! The mansion is a prime example of refined European styling in the Empire State”.

The 15-year veteran in luxury travel is known for her marvelous taste in picking boutique hotels and resorts all over the world and Glenmere is no exception. Her company works to include only the most unique properties in any given destination in their eclectic portfolio. In less than six years, Orchid Resorts & Escapes has established itself as a premier luxury brand of whimsical, refreshing and extraordinary boutique properties in the travel and leisure business and looks forward to growing alongside partners such as Glenmere.
